

Do you still have products available from previous seasons?

Stock of craft products that has not sold out by the time a new catalogue range is launched generally remains available for some time afterwards.

For reasons of space these products are often not reprinted in the catalogue or on the webstore. However, if they are in stock you can still add them to any phone, fax or posted order simply by quoting the order number as normal.

Customer Services will be able to tell you whether a particular item is still in stock. A list of remaining stock items can be made available on request.
