

Gifts for Life: Kenya

Kenya is one of the most economically developed of the East African countries but still has extremely high levels of poverty. Your gift is more important than ever.

A sweeter future

Honey producers in Kenya know that the key to securing long-term, sustainable income from honey production lies in preserving their fragile environment.

Traidcraft is helping Kenyan beekeepers to overcome environmental 'shocks' like drought by conserving and protecting their natural habitat. Because beekeeping can only be successful with good environmental management, small-scale Kenyan honey producers are reaping the benefits through increased quantity and quality of their produce.

A gift of £25 could help beekeepers like Molo and Elisabeth generate increased income from their honey even at times of drought.
