FORMAL COMPLAINTS POLICY

Approved: March 2007

Traidcraft Formal Complaints Policy

Traidcraft is committed to excellent service for all our stakeholders. We regard complaints as an opportunity to turn a negative experience for any stakeholder into a positive one, as well as an opportunity to learn and to improve. We see the fair and prompt handling of any complaint as an essential part of living by three of our five key Foundation Principles:

- We respect all people and the environment
- We abide by and promote fair business practices
- We strive to be transparent and accountable

We value the opportunity to engage with dialogue with our stakeholders and we recognise the value of dialogue in informing our decisions. This policy does not relate to dialogue that we enter into with stakeholders. This policy only concerns those situations where a stakeholder wishes to make a formal complaint.

We will commit to dealing with your complaint courteously, seriously and efficiently and we will do our best to put things right. Please remember that we may not be able to resolve every complaint to your complete satisfaction. There will be occasions where we can not amend our strategy or way of doing things to meet your complaint or where a mistake has been made and is acknowledged but can not be recalled.

1. Who can make a complaint

A complaint can be made by any Traidcraft stakeholder. This stakeholder could be an individual or a group. The stakeholder may be based in UK or overseas. Traidcraft stakeholders include customers, suppliers, producer groups, shareholders, campaigners, donors and staff.

2 Form of complaints

You may wish to make a complaint about any area of Traidcraft's work, policy or performance. We recognise that this could encompass customer service issues, Traidcraft policies and work, fulfilment of our commitments to producers/beneficiaries, staff behaviour and many more areas. To make the process simpler for stakeholders we have identified guidelines for different forms of complaints to be made. It would be extremely helpful to Traidcraft, and enable us better to deal with your complaint, if you would follow these guidelines.

If possible please put your complaint in writing (but by all means do use email, telephone or, if appropriate, face-to-face feedback as well to raise the matter initially).

2.1 How to make a complaint about customer service received from Traidcraft plc

If you are dissatisfied with the customer service that you have received from Traidcraft plc, in the first instance you should contact our Customer Services Department. This department will normally be able to handle the matter directly with you if it is a product or service related issue. If they are not able to deal with the matter they will ensure that the complaint is properly logged and directed to the appropriate member of staff for response and followed through.

If you are unhappy with the response you have received from our customer service department you should contact the Director of Operations at the address below.

We aim to provide an initial response to customer service complaints within 7 working days of receiving the complaint.

Data regarding the level and type of customer service complaints that Traidcraft plc receives is made available each year to the public as part of our Social Accounts. This data is regularly monitored by Traidcraft plc managers and targets set for improvements.
